

Simon Burgess

Simon Burgess is a Professor of Economics at University of Bristol, and Director of CMPO (Centre for Market and Public Organisation), an ESRC Research Centre. Simon completed his PhD in Oxford in 1987 with Steve Nickell. Since then he has worked on unemployment dynamics, job security, poverty, economics of marriage, divorce and fertility, education, ethnic segregation, and neighbourhoods. As part of his research in CMPO he works on incentives in the public sector; education; the role of choice in education and health. For three years he was Dean of Research of the Faculty of Social Sciences and Law at Bristol. He is a Research Fellow of CEPR and IZA in Bonn, and was Director of an EU-funded network on a “Dynamic Approach to Europe’s Unemployment Problem”. He served as an elected member of the Royal Economic Society’s Committee for Women in Economics, and is an elected member of the Board of the European Society of Population Economics. His webpage is <http://www.efm.bris.ac.uk/ecs/home.html>.